Spring into Feline Medicine eConference Returns with Three Days of Cutting-Edge Feline Healthcare Topics

Popular event for veterinary professionals of all levels returns after receiving rave reviews

BRIDGEWATER, NJ; March 30, 2023 – The American Association of Feline Practitioners' (AAFP) Spring into Feline Medicine eConference returns this April and May with three days of live virtual presentations for veterinary professionals and students. Expert speakers will present live on a variety of feline-specific topics, including Feline Infectious Peritonitis (FIP), hair loss, skin disease, trauma, respiratory issues, osteoarthritis, neurology, pulmonary patterns, dental issues, stomatitis, uveitis, crystalluria, and more.

The live presentations will be held on April 30, May 10, and May 20 to best accommodate busy veterinary professionals' schedules. Attendees can expect an interactive Q&A session to follow each presentation. Additionally, the presentations will be recorded and available on-demand through December 31, 2023, so attendees have ample time to catch up on a day or revisit the material and gain a deeper understanding of the sessions. Attendees can earn up to 13.5 RACE-approved continuing education credits.

“We are thrilled to bring back the Spring into Feline Medicine eConference to the veterinary community,” said Heather O’Steen, CAE, AAFP CEO. “This event highlights our commitment to providing high standards of feline education and evidence-based medicine. The agenda includes a variety of feline topics that will provide attendees with practical take-home information which they can implement with their clients.”

Attendee feedback for previous Spring into Feline Medicine eConferences has been consistently high. In the 2022 eConference Survey, 99% of attendees learned new practical information to incorporate into their practice and would recommend attending the eConference to a colleague.
